

NUS-Hokkaido University Summer Programme: SP2201: Agri-Science in Japan and Singapore

Programme Overview

Are you interested in finding out how Singapore is developing its own agriculture industry to ensure food security and how Hokkaido produces its delicious agricultural products despite its long and frigid winter?

Jointly offered by Faculty of Agriculture, Hokkaido University (HU) and Faculty of Science, National University of Singapore (NUS), SP2201 Agri-Science in Japan and Singapore is a programme which aims to provide students with a practical and in-depth knowledge of the various challenges both Japan and Singapore face in agriculture.

The programme gives you a chance to broaden your knowledge on the agriculture industry in Japan and Singapore. It is also a good gateway to understand another country's culture and make new friends.

Location

The programme takes place in Hokkaido, Japan, at Hokkaido University (Sapporo Campus) and in Singapore at NUS, Faculty of Science.

Dates

Japan: 9 June 2024 (Sunday) – 15 June 2024 (Saturday)

- Actual programme at Hokkaido University will be from 10 June (Monday) to 14 June (Friday). As there is an activity planned on the evening of 14 June, students should only leave Sapporo from 15 June onwards.

Singapore: 5 August 2024 (Monday) – 9 August 2024 (Friday)

- There may be some (non-academic) activities on 9 August (National Day).

Academic Information

The programme is co-taught by lecturers from the NUS Faculty of Science and professors from the Faculty of Agriculture, Hokkaido University. Lectures, practical lessons, field trips and collaborative group work are all part of the programme.

Major topics include (varies yearly):

1. Overview of Agriculture in Hokkaido
2. Overview of Agriculture in Singapore
3. Modern technology applications to agriculture
4. Food Security
5. Marketing systems for agricultural products
6. Agri-business
7. Aquaculture in Singapore

Financial Assistance

Click here to find out more about various financial schemes offered by NUS.

All students selected for this programme will be eligible for the FoS Global Classroom Grant (capped at $500). This grant will only be dispersed to you after the Hokkaido portion of the course. Please note that each student may only receive the grant once during his/her entire candidature.

For students who require additional financial support, you may also apply for the Science Student Overseas Exposure Fund (SSOEF). SSOEF can cover up to 50% - 100% of the estimated expenses, depending on per capita income (PCI).

Students will also be eligible to apply for NASA Enhancement Bursary/Scholarship. The bursary is eligible for students who demonstrate financial need, while the scholarship will be granted based on academic merit and its quantum based on citizenship.

*Note: This course involves financial commitment. Financial aid and grants provided will only defray some of the costs. Your decision to sign up for this course should be independent of whether you will be successful in your funding application.

More information on financial aid and its application will be sent to offered students later.
